SCHOOL REPORT.

BLANCHARD.

This school during the year has been under the instruction of Miss Ina M. Stevens of Northfield. A teacher with good mental and moral qualities, combined with energy, perseverance and a desire to educate, made this school a success. Her method of object-teaching for the smaller scholars was both pleasing and beneficial. A rigid and lengthy questioning, the answers readily given, the numerous examples correctly performed, wrought and explained at the close of the fall term, showed thoroughness of instruction and a good understanding on the part of the pupils of what they had been over. We found some well advanced scholars in this school. The teacher, in her efforts to instruct and discipline the school, was well supported by the parents, which was gratifying to her and profitable to the school.

We find far too many scholars in this and other schools who attend a few weeks and then stay away.

UPLANDS.

Spring term taught by Miss Lura B. Glines. Miss Glines was a former pupil of this school and resided in the vicinity. She was well spoken of by all and her success in the school-room as a teacher averaged well.

Fall term was in charge of Miss Arianna Tallant of East Concord. Miss Tallant is a young lady of pleasing demeanor and seemed to gain the good-will of her pupils. At the closing examination the exercises were very creditable to both teacher and scholars.

Winter term, Mrs. Sarah E. Small, teacher. Although Mrs. Small had a small school she gave her attention to it, and a good degree of interest was manifested by the pupils in their several studies. Improvement in the discipline of this school was noticed at its close.

Blanchard and Uplands reported by W. H. Carter.

EMERY.

Spring and fall terms, Miss Mabel A. Carter, teacher. Both terms were conducted very successfully by Miss Carter; the scholars showed unusual interest in their studies and did credit to themselves and their teacher at the examination.

BOROUGH.

Spring term of ten weeks taught by Stella N. Sargent. This was Miss Sargent's first experience in teaching. Owing to sickness your committee was unable to visit the school through the term. We were informed by those who had visited the school through the term and those who were present at the examination that the school was a success.

Fall term, nine weeks, taught by Miss Marie E. Coombs. This was Miss Coombs' first experience in teaching. Good order was maintained through the term. The examination showed good progress in the several recitations.

CARTER.

Winter term, Miss Ida A. Boyden, teacher. We are unable to give a full report of this term, the school being now in session. There is much interest manifested in the school on the part of the scholars and teacher. We think it will be a profitable term.

DEPOT.

Spring term, Miss Nellie A. Dow, teacher. This was Miss Dow's first experience in teaching. Good progress was made in all the branches taught. The examination was good.

Fall term, Miss Ida R. Boyden, teacher. Miss Boyden is an experienced teacher. The scholars were very much interested in the school work; good progress was made. We were much pleased with the exercises at the close.

Borough, Emery, Carter and Depot schools reported by C. N. Clough.

CENTER SCHOOL.

Summer term taught by Miss Elizabeth F. Houser. Fall term by Miss Houser and Miss M. E. Clough. Winter term by Miss Myra E. Bliss. The three ladies who have worked in this school the past year brought to their work the best of educational qualifications and unequalled ability to impart instruction. Many of the children will date from this year the beginning of new ambition, and the awakening of new interests and better impulses.

The school was unfortunate in having among the older pupils, in the winter term, some to whom a stronger adjective than indifferent might be applied. These pupils made little progress in manners, morals or intelligence. Nearly all the children studied well and made good progress during the entire year.

SHAKER SCHOOL.

Summer and fall terms taught by Miss Jennie Evans. A friend writes of the closing exercises: "In my opinion the leading characteristics of this school are thoroughness and precision. Every pupil, however dull at the beginning of the term, seems to have been taught to think and to express thought as well." Our own knowledge of the school confirms this opinion.

Our Shaker friends, at some trouble and expense, introduced free-hand drawing. We think they will see good results from the experiment if it is continued.

The winter term, taught by Miss Edna Fitz, assisted by Miss B. A. York, is still in session. Teachers and pupils are hard at work, and, we have no doubt, are making much progress.

The Center and Shaker schools reported by C. F. Emery.
